

Anastasia Brakhman
Berrenrather Str. 409
50937 Cologne
Germany
Tel.: (+49)176/668-457-99
Email: anabrakhman@gmail.com

Curriculum vitae

- 2005 – University degree in history, Russian State University for the Humanities, Moscow
- 2007-2008 and since 2010 - PhD study at the Ruhr-University Bochum under the supervision of Prof. Dr. Gerhard Lubich
- 2008-2010 - Participation in the research project "Political Language in the Middle Ages: Semantical Approaches", project leaders: Prof. Dr. Bernhard Jussen and Dr. Jan Rüdiger, Goethe University Frankfurt am Main

Papers

- "An outsider at the Ottonian court: literary communication of Liudprand of Cremona" presented at the colloquium of the Department of Medieval History (Prof. Dr. Steffen Patzold), Tübingen, 30 January 2012
- "An outsider at the Ottonian court: the example of the literary communication in the Antapodosis of Liudprand of Cremona" presented at the conference "News from the Middle Ages: Heidelberg-Mannheim workshop discussions", Speyer, 8 October 2011
- "The levels of communication in the works of Liudprand of Cremona" presented at the colloquium of the Department of Medieval History (Prof. Dr. Gerhard Lubich), Bochum, 30 June 2010
- „Talking explicitly about calliditas in the Antapodosis of Liudprand of Cremona" presented at the colloquium of the Department of Medieval History (Prof. Dr. Bernhard Jussen), Frankfurt am Main, 17 December 2009
- "Calliditas in the historiography of the 9 c. and 10 c." presented at the workshop "The applications of semantical approach", Frankfurt am Main, 24 June 2009
- "A semantic of an uncanonical text? Political judgment and interpretation in the historiography of the 9 c. and 10 c. and self-representation of an author" presented at the colloquium of the Department of Medieval History (Prof. Dr. Bernhard Jussen), Frankfurt am Main, 10 February 2009
- "A semantic of an uncanonical text? The presentation of the rulership, war and alienness in the historiography of the 9 c. and 10 c." presented at the colloquium of the Department of Medieval History (Prof. Dr. Gerhard Lubich), Bochum, 17 July 2008

Conferences attended

- “The son-in-law in the medieval society”, held in Erlangen, 21-23 September 2011
- International Medieval Congress, held in Leeds, 11-14 July 2011
- “Everything only symbolic? Results and perspectives of the research of symbolic communication”, held in Münster, 16-18 June 2011
- The 49th German historians day, held in Berlin, 29 September – 1 October 2010