

CALL FOR PAPERS

The 2024 Celtic Studies Association of North America
Conference

April 4-7, 2024
at Fairleigh Dickinson University

<https://csana2024.wordpress.com>

Fairleigh Dickinson University is thrilled to host the 2024 Celtic Studies Association of North America (CSANA) Conference on our historic Florham Campus at 285 Madison Avenue, Madison, New Jersey, USA.

Keynotes, special events, and other details will be added to the conference website as arrangements are finalized. Confirmed speakers include Paul Muldoon (Princeton University) and Éva Guillorel (University of Rennes).

Presenters must be members of CSANA, but you don't have to be a member to send in a proposal. Newcomers are welcome and encouraged! Visit the CSANA website at <https://celticstudies.org/about> to learn about membership. Become a member or renew your membership by March 1, 2024, by ordering the North American Journal of Celtic Studies at <https://ohiostatepress.org/NAJCS.html>.

If you'd like to present, email your title, abstract, and bio to Matthieu Boyd (mwboyd@fdu.edu) by December 31, 2023.

Proposals can relate to any area of Celtic Studies: Literature, History, Language and Linguistics, Folklore, Art and Archeology, etc. Pedagogical and interdisciplinary topics are especially welcome, but not required. There may be an opportunity to publish papers presented at the conference with Fairleigh Dickinson University Press.

Traditional presentations are 20 minutes plus time for questions. Undergrads are invited to propose 10-minute presentations for a limited number of slots. Other formats are possible: if you'd like to propose a roundtable, workshop, collaboration, masterclass, performance, etc., write up what you have in mind!

Questions? Email mwboyd@fdu.edu. FDU looks forward to your visit!
